ANSI Innovation Series: How the Information and Communications Technology Industry Keeps Lives on the Line during COVID-19

The global COVID-19 pandemic has fundamentally changed the way we live, from how people work remotely, to the way we interact and celebrate with family and friends—all with the support of information and communications technology (ICT). The first of an innovation series, the ANSI explores how various standards support innovative ways of working and living during COVID-19. In this issue: Standards that support ICT.

Reminder: Request for Member Input on New Interim Final Rule that Amends the Export Administration Regulations, Huawei Inclusion

Through August 12, 2020, ANSI is seeking stakeholder input to inform comments to the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security (BIS) regarding a new interim final rule that amends the Export Administration Regulations (EAR). The rule amends the EAR to authorize the release of certain technology to Huawei and its affiliates on the Entity List without a license if such release is made for the purpose of contributing to the revision or development of a "standard" in a "standards organization."

ANAB's ILAC MRA Recognition Extended to Include ISO 17034 Reference Material Producers

The ANSI National Accreditation Board (ANAB), a wholly owned subsidiary of ANSI, has extended its signatory status with the International Laboratory Accreditation Cooperation (ILAC) mutual recognition arrangement to include reference material producers (RMPs) under ISO 17034, General Requirements For The Competence Of Reference Material Producers. With the extension, ANAB's ISO 17034 accreditation program is now recognized internationally as meeting the requirements of ILAC.
