

Open Source, Open Standards OPEN MINDS

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

April 15, 2016 ■ Washington, DC

The American National Standards Institute (ANSI), in partnership with American University and the George Washington University, will convene an interactive day of discussions on Friday, April 15, 2016, at the FHI 360 Conference Center in Washington, DC, to explore open source and its impact on the standards community and beyond.

Representatives of industry will share perspectives on how open source is already influencing the direction of their products, systems, and services. And standards developers will talk about their experiences and challenges working with both traditional standards and open source.

Sponsorship opportunities are available at the levels below, offering your organization valuable benefits, recognition, and first-hand involvement. Sponsorship deadline: March 21, 2016.
