Golden Gate Tap Room

Opening in the fall of 2013, The Golden Gate Tap Room is a massive Union Square bar that complements its 100-beer menu with numerous options for adult entertainment of the wholesome variety. This (8,000) square-foot second floor plays home to two regulation shuffleboard tables, two foosball tables, three skeeball machines, a handful of pool tables, and a flotilla of arcade games both new and vintage, including video golf, video motorcycling, and video poker. The (20) big-screen TVs are perfect for enjoying the game and those aforementioned beers keep players well-lubricated.

$$ (449 Powell St)

Bartlett Hall

Bartlett Hall opened in Union Square in 2014 offering upscale comfort food, a great beer selection, takes on classic cocktails, and a fun, casual space. Named after the first Alcalde (mayor) of American-era San Francisco who changed the name of the city to San Francisco from Yerba Buena, this urban space fuses the city's historic elements with its present day lively personality. An eating & drinking establishment like no other, Bartlett Hall captures the essence of San Francisco, where guests can sip barrel-aged cocktails, house-brewed beers & enjoy uniquely crafted bites from lunch to late night.

$$ (242 O'Farrell St)

Jasper's Corner Tap and Kitchen

Jasper's is equal parts sporty and swanky. Inspired by one of San Francisco's first surveyors, legendary Jasper O'Farrell - Jasper's Corner Tap & Kitchen pays homage to the history and culture of the social city Jasper O'Farrell envisioned. This spot is perfect for casual group looking to unwind after a meeting or a sophisticated group of theater-goers. With (18) beers on tap and a deliciously creative menu, this restaurant is a Union Square favorite.

$$ (401 Taylor St)

John's Grill

This historical restaurant is one of the city oldest and most famous establishments. It's a favorite with local and national celebrities who enjoy the great steaks, salads and pastas. John's Grill was the setting for author, Dashiell Hammett's The Maltese Falcon and it features live jazz nightly.

Bodega

Bodega SF is an evolution of Matthew Ho's family's restaurant, Bodega Bistro, which operated from 2003-2017 out of San Francisco's Tenderloin District, serving traditional Northern Vietnamese cuisine. The brand's success continued as Ho organized pop-up events, eventually transitioning to meal packages throughout the pandemic to meet demand. In 2022, Ho opened Bodega SF's brick-and-mortar location, again located in the Tenderloin District, bringing high-quality Vietnamese cuisine back to the community with a modernized, casual fine dining experience. The family-style concept will allow visitors to sample its variety of authentic, creative dishes.

Black Cat

A supper club, bar and live music venue in the heart of San Francisco's Tenderloin neighborhood, the historic arts and entertainment district once home to great supper clubs and fabled live jazz venues. Tapping into that legacy, Black Cat is a refined social dining experience featuring a modern American supper club menu. The bi-level interior, thoughtfully designed by Craige Walters, brings a timeless grit-meets-glam aesthetic, featuring blackened exposed brick walls, photo murals, lush antique velvet, distressed leather and vintage gold finishes.

$$ (400 Eddy St)

Lapisara Eatery

Opened in 2018, Lapisara Eatery is inspired by the mixture culture, the innovation, and the dreamers - the eatery embodies this very spirit. The Lapisara Eatery is Thai-American Fusion Culinary and attracts those who don't chase luxury, but who live it by elevating life's moments, indulging their senses, and celebrating every day with the best food, service, and surroundings in the world. They provide a warm service that will make you feel right at home.

$$$ (698 Post Street)

620 Jones

620 Jones adjoins one of San Francisco's stunning historic landmark buildings, The Gaylord Hotel, built in 1929, just three blocks west of Union Square. Guests have access to the entire venue to include the beautiful patio with cocktail seating and a view of the downtown cityscape. Indoors, guests find a lounge atmosphere with soft seating and warm lighting.

$$ (620 Jones St)

Delarosa

This is the second installment of the popular Delarosa restaurant. The original, located in the Marina District, is a neighborhood anchor and local favorite. Opening in October 2015, this Yerba Buena location offers a similar menu and ambiance as the original. The menu features pizza, pastas, antipasti and a full bar. Standouts include Roman-style shared plates like spicy marinara meatballs and burrata bruschetta. The 120-seat restaurant has a modern Italian feel with large graphic murals from artist Melissa Wagner and includes an outdoor patio and a large communal table.

The European

During Prohibition, many flocked to Europe to imbibe, requesting traditional American cocktails. Bartenders throughout Europe infused the cocktails with their own touch. After the lift of the Prohibition, many of the recipes were imported back to the United States with a decidedly European influence. The name reflects a European sensibility and style, expertly mixing old with new, as well as the cocktail list featuring mostly European spirits. There's nothing overly trendy or gimmicky about the European, just the timeless thrill of a finely made cocktail.

$$ (490 Geary St)

Tratto

Tratto, in The Marker Hotel, opened in 2016 with an Italian "aperitivo" vibe. That means lots of large communal tables, cocktails, small plates and family-style entrees of rustic Italian food. The interior has been renovated fresh white walls, chestnut leather banquettes, and large, landscape line drawings on the wall of the San Francisco skyline, from a Tenderloin point-of-view.

$$ (501 Geary St)

New Delhi

Named one of the finest Indian Restaurants in the US by New York Times and featured on the Galloping Gourmet TV Show, New Delhi is the place to dine. Decorated like a Maharajah's private banquet room, the restaurant serves cuisine made from recipes culled from the royal Indian menus dating back 300 to 400 years using the freshest local ingredients. The restaurant has handsomely carved high ceilings supported by numerous columns, which are richly ornamented.

$$ (160 Ellis St)

Cafe Mason

Café Mason serves homemade dishes, prepared from the scratch using quality ingredients. Distinguished from serving more of ready-made-food in many diners, presenting homemade food takes more labor and time. They carefully select their own produce daily, mostly organic produce whenever available. All herbs are fresh from farm to table, they do not use dried, preserved herbs for any dish. Breakfast, offerings include fine dishes that are healthy and yet tasteful such as Crepes, Benedicts, and Frittattas.
